★ Building Children's Strengths

At this time of year there are lots of changes coming up for children; moving up to secondary school, changing classes, making new friends or moving house. To help your children to deal with these changes, try focusing on the positives to help children grow in confidence and face new challenges.

- Try to see things from their point of view, listen and acknowledge their feelings - e.g. 'I know it feels scary to start at a new school'
- Let them know that everyone feels nervous when they try, or start new things and remind them of times when they have coped well with change
- Try to present things in a positive way and focus on the good stuff. Negativity is catching!
- Pay attention to the things your child does well, rather than what they are not good at
- Help children to recognise that everyone feels anxious sometimes, and that mistakes are normal and we can learn from them
- Don't feel you always have to 'rescue' children, let them work things out for themselves
- Practice things in advance, e.g. the walk to school, and teach them problem solving skills by practicing 'what ifs?'
- Find out what your school is doing to help children, for example with the transition to secondary school
- Help them think about the positive people around them who they can talk to if they need help

★ Did you know?

Research shows that for every negative thing we say or point out to someone we need to say 3 positive things to re-dress the balance – otherwise that person will only focus on the negative!

★ Strengths Cards

To help children to notice and focus on their strengths Safety Net has produced a set of colourful strength cards based on artwork by local children. We have ten sets to give away FREE to the first Brighton & Hove primary schools who email us at newsletter@safety-net.org.uk with the answer to the question: 'how many strength cards are in the Safety Net pack?' Find the answer on our website at www.safety-net.org.uk.

★ Summer Safety Checklist

The summer holiday means that your child is more likely to come into contact with new people and organisations. For example, crèches & nurseries, child minders, after-school clubs & activities, private teachers & tutors, hobby & sports clubs, churches and other places of worship. These are fantastic places for your children to develop friendships and new skills, but we also need to make sure that they are running safely.

Checking up on child safety can feel like a difficult conversation to have, especially if the person or organisation has already looked after your child for a while, but good quality providers should always be happy to answer any questions about how they keep children safe.

Here's a checklist of things to ask:

- Do they have a child protection policy that you can have a copy of?
- Are DBS (Disclosure and Barring) checks (previously Criminal Records Bureau) routinely carried out on staff and volunteers?
- Are there enough staff for the numbers of children?
- Are there good security measures to keep children safe?
- Do the adults create a happy atmosphere and treat the children with respect? Can I visit to see for myself?
- Will my child's specific needs be catered for?
- Remember to talk to your child about the activities and people, do they seem happy there?

We can help! Safety Net can help organisations to update their DBS checks on staff and volunteers. Our friendly team also works with community groups to provide support with creating or updating policies and procedures.

Young Oasis are planning an Outdoor Arts Programme that will run throughout August with outdoor art trips and workshops for children and young people aged 6-13 yrs who are affected by familial drug or alcohol misuse. Belonging to a group, being creative and having fun is the focus. For more information, contact Jo Parker at Young Oasis 01273 696970 (ext 300).

★ Cycling is great for your health, but one parent makes a plea for safer cycling

One morning my 12 year old son planned to cycle to school for the second time, but he dissolved into tears at the point of putting his (plain grey, cool and self-chosen) helmet on. It transpired that he's already been teased for wearing a helmet, so much so that he couldn't bring himself to put it on, therefore he wasn't allowed to cycle on that day. Character building for sure, but such a shame for a child who's not particularly outgoing and in his first year at big school. This is a dangerous attitude that I know affects many teens, so I urge parents to set a good example and model helmet wearing to show it's not just little kids that need protection.

In 2014 there were 21,287 cyclists injured in reported cycling accidents in the UK, including 3,514 who were seriously injured or killed. Of these at least 2,005 were children. Cycling accidents increase as children get older, with 10 – 14 year olds the most at risk. Head injuries are common injuries to cyclists, with 45% of child cyclists involved in accidents suffering a head injury (Rospa - www.rospa.com).
